BOOK OF BUSINESS ACCELERATOR

Your Next $60K Is Already in Your Client List.

A three-step play to turn your highest-tax clients into paid planning engagements. No ads, no new leads. Just the people already paying you.

THE PROBLEM

You're running your firm backwards.

Most firms lead with compliance, bookkeeping and payroll, then wait for April to get paid. Advisory, the most valuable thing you do, is an afterthought you rarely pitch.

Meanwhile, your biggest clients write five- and six-figure checks to the IRS every quarter, and you're the one person who sees those numbers. You don't need more clients. You need to start the planning conversation with the ones you have.

> Every dollar a client overpays the IRS is a planning engagement nobody offered them.

1 STEP ONE

Find your top 20.

Open last year's returns and pull the 20 clients sending the IRS the most money. Every one of them wants to pay less, legally. Your job is to find out how.

LOOK FOR

- Business owners (S corp, partnership, Schedule C) with $250K+ in net profit
- Large quarterly estimated payments
- A big balance due at filing
- Multiple entities, real estate, or a big income year coming

LOOK FOR THESE CLIENTS AGAIN

- High-income W-2 earners. Retirement, charitable and timing moves still apply.
- W-2 clients with a side business, rentals or equity compensation
- A spouse who owns a business

2 STEP TWO

Make the call.

Call, don't email. Book the meeting before you hang up.

THE SCRIPT

"Hi [Name], it's [You] from [Firm]. I was going through your file and noticed how much you're sending the IRS each quarter. I see a few legal ways to bring that number down. Can we grab 30 minutes next week so I can walk you through them?"

If they ask what it costs: "The meeting's on me. If there are real savings, I'll show you the number and quote a flat fee before we do any work."

! Never say "I should have caught this." You're looking forward, not admitting a miss. It protects you and keeps the client's trust in the work you've already done.

3 STEP THREE

Run the meeting. Price it. Sign it.

01 Prep before they walk in. Review the last two returns and year-to-date numbers.

02 Show two or three levers. Entity structure and S corp election, reasonable compensation, retirement plan design, accountable plan, depreciation timing, family payroll, charitable strategy.

03 Give a projected savings range, then quote one fixed fee. Sign a planning engagement letter in the meeting.

THE MATH ON YOUR TOP 20

20	× 20%	× $15,000	= $60,000
Top clients you call	Become planning engagements	Average planning fee	New fees, from clients you already have

Your average fee depends on the savings you find. At $7K–$12K per engagement, the same four clients bring in $28K–$48K.

PRICING GUIDE

Price from projected value. Then lock it.

PROJECTED ANNUAL SAVINGS	FEE AS % OF PROJECTED VALUE	YOUR FIXED FEE
Up to $13,333	—	$4,000 minimum
$25,000	28%	$7,000
$50,000	24%	$12,000
$75,000	20%	$15,000
Over $75,000	—	$25,000+

KEEP IT CLEAN: VALUE PRICING, NOT A CUT OF THE SAVINGS

- Quote one fixed fee, in writing, before any planning work starts.
- The fee is owed whether or not the client implements, and whatever the savings turn out to be.
- Never adjust the fee after the fact. No savings guarantees, no money-back promises.
- Use a separate planning engagement letter, apart from return preparation.
- Don't run this play on audit or review clients, and check your state board's rules.

This guide is a pricing framework, not legal advice. Rules vary by state.

FLIP THE MODEL

Advisory is the front door. Everything else is the upsell.

Sell the planning engagement first. Compliance, payroll and bookkeeping become the recurring layer that keeps the client with you.

OLD WAY

- Compliance
- Payroll
- Bookkeeping
- Planning baked in

NEW WAY

- Planning engagement (anchor fee)
- Compliance
- Payroll

WHAT HAPPENS NEXT

Then you run out of top 20.

Your client list is finite, and you're about to work through it. Collect the $60,000 first. That's your priority. Then you need a steady flow of new clients who come to you for planning, not a cheaper tax return. Here's the arithmetic on replacing your book.

50
Guaranteed qualified leads

× $15,000
Average engagement ($5,000 to $25,000)

= $750,000
Pipeline value in 90 days

The 50 leads are written into your agreement. The $750,000 is not. It's what they're worth if every one became an engagement at your average fee, and no firm closes at that rate. It sizes the opportunity. Your close rate decides what you bank.

At the same 20% close rate from Step 3: 10 new engagements, about $150,000.

THAT'S WHAT NEXLI BUILDS

You fixed your book. Now we fill your calendar.

The Digital Rainmaker System repositions your firm around advisory and brings you at least 50 new qualified leads, like the ones already sitting in your client list: website, intake, follow-up and ads, done for you.
